

WOMAN'S WORK.

Articles of news and travel From many a hand used to wielding a gavel.
"Our Boys and Girls" remembered are,
With many stories and poems from afar.
But, Madam President, for you The "Woman's Work" will better do.
It tells the news and methods show Which are just all that you need know.
It's worth to you all of the price.
Send for me to-day—that's good advice.
And beside these, I'd have you know, Your husband will have his page to show Him how our best men's plans are worked, Meetings so interesting they're never shirked.
The Sunday school lesson is told, So plainly and well, for young and old.

And the C. E. meeting has its page, There is something in me for every age.

For two hundred and fifty cents You'll get me without further expense.

The President:
Just let me write your name right here, I'll have to have you, that's perfectly clear.

(Enter Miss Year Book, who speaks):

I'm very little, but, oh my!
Living without me, do not try!
Just examine my blank spaces To be filled in all the cases, With names and dates and information
Which will help your Auxiliary bear the nation.
Every member should have a copy of me, I hold all she need know for a year, you see.

Besides, I give ideas, too, For twenty-four programs, the year through.

Madam President, don't you see, How very badly you need me?

The President:
Indeed we do, and it will be The best of help to set me free From dread of all the ridicule Of members who know I break every rule.

Your modest cost is but a nickle, But you'll help us out of many a pickle.

(These thoughts so cleverly put are only a part of the work of a Secretary of Literature, who objects to making known her name.—Editor.)

SOUTH CAROLINA SYNODICAL.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Synod of South Carolina met in the First Presbyterian church of Greenwood on September 26th-28th. Although the church is without a pastor, every detail was planned out and executed with dispatch. The women of the Greenwood church, represented by their Auxiliary President, Miss Louise Fleming, extended to the Auxiliary a hearty welcome.

Mrs. J. B. Townsend, of Anderson, responded in a most happy manner, and right at the very beginning of the meeting the Presbyterian women of South Carolina scored in Christian fellowship. The eight Presbyterian Auxiliaries were well represented and all Synodical officers were present, except where Providentially hindered.

The first session was held on Tuesday evening, and the addresses by Dr. E. E. Gillespie on the five points of the Progressive Program, and of Dr. Egbert W. Smith, Executive Secretary of Foreign Missions, were the outstanding features. Dr. Smith spoke on his recent trip to Africa and left an indelible impression of the were two of the items brought to a successful finish.

The reports of the Vice-President, Mrs. Andrew Bramlett, of Columbia, and of the Young People's Secretary, Mrs. T. C. Peden, of Westminster, were of a high order, and showed much growth in work and vision in the Synodical Auxiliary.

Mrs. E. F. Reid, President of the North Carolina Synodical Auxiliary, added much to the inspiration of the tion and Ministerial Relief; Mrs. T.

C. Peden, Westminster, Secretary Young People's Work; Mrs. Parker
E. Connor, Edisto Island, Secretary Synodical Presbyterian and Congregational Home Missions; Mrs. George Lunz, Charleston, Secretary Literature; Miss Margaret Gist, York, Historian.

The next place of meeting is Rock Hill.

Mrs. W. L. Dunovant, Chairman Publicity Committee.

EXPRESSIONS OF APPRECIATION FOR THE BIRTHDAY GIFT.

From Miss Dowd's School, Kochi, Japan.

"What can we say to convey our feelings of joy at the result of the great campaign more than what the girls said when I told them, 'Banzai' they shouted. Still others were told and another big 'Banzai' from them told of their joy in answered prayer.
Yes, they have prayed faithfully and with faith, dear little things. Even the tiny ones at the cottage have not forgotten to ask daily that the money might come, and now is the time for thanksgiving from our heart to yourself, for your devoted efforts, to dear Mrs. McMillan for her arduous labor of love, and to all those who labored together with you.

"It is not only the grand total in dollars, but the far-reaching effect of this campaign, which will be like the wave from the pebble cast into the lake and will spread and spread throughout all the work, for giving is a most infectious thing, and it loos-ens not only the pocket-strings, but gives such increased interest in the cause, that all mission work must get an uplift from it. The many letters we have received already shows this fact, so we say again a great big 'Thank you!'

"Please tell all those dear people, old and young, that we should be glad if it were possible to send each one some token of our love, more than words, but that not being possible, and knowing that they have already received the 'giver's blessing,' they will be getting ready to do it again for some other great need in the work that you will be constrained to help.

"God bless all of you richly.

Annie Dowd.

Annie Ellis."

From the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions.

"The Executive Committee takes this occasion to express its hearty gratitude to the Woman's Auxiliary for the splendid issue of their efforts to raise a special fund for Miss Dowd's School.

appalling need of the African people and of our responsibility and our present opportunity.

The Wednesday morning devotionals and the Lord's Supper were conducted by Dr. Gillespie.

The State President, Mrs. F.
Louise Mayes, of Greenville, delivered her message full of interest and inspiration, in which she declared all accomplished that was planned for the year. The Conferences for Young People and Lay Workers at Clinton sessions, and especially fine was her address upon Life Enlistment.

Miss Margaret Gist, historian, read her remarkable introduction to the history of the Presbyterian women of South Carolina, which has been sent to Mrs. Irvine.

Dr. Melton Clark, of Columbia Theological Seminary, also addressed the body, driving home the thought that society was claiming many talented women, because they had not been enlisted in the work of the Church.

Wednesday evening Rev. Ray Riddle, Field Secretary, made an interesting map talk upon the need of evangelism in South Carolina.

Dr. Homer McMillan gave one of his telling addresses, bringing out the thought that not only the poor, but the rich also, need the gospel preached to them. Dr. McMillan sees our nation's need as it is rarely given to man to see it, and has a marvelous power of presentation.

Thursday morning's session, which was the final session, was given over to discussions, election and installation, and reports of committees.

The officers for the coming year are: Mrs. F. Louise Mayes, Greenville, President; Mrs. Andrew Bramlett, Columbia, Vice-President at large; Mrs. Leslie Stribling, Seneca, Recording Secretary; Mrs. A. B.
Morse, Abbeville, Treasurer; Mrs.
James White, Rock Hill, Secretary Foreign Missions; Mrs. A. D. Calhoun, Greenwood, Secretary Assembly's Home Missions; Mrs. A. L.
Blake, Rock Hill, Secretary Spiritual Growth; Mrs. Duncan McKenzie, Tim-
